PEBEE.

The roofs are black against the sky.

The sky is warm and mellow;

With a soft, pale light,

And oh, her hair is yellow.

The lilies blow to left, to right,

She sets her milk-pail down—

She puts her apron on her white,

Puts it in her gown.

Drop, blossom, on her yellow hair;

Rise up and kiss her feet;

Was it to a man, on Love and Scorn?

Sweet rose that smiled,

New woe and wild,

O Eye and Tear—mother and child.

Well! Love and Pain.

Be kind to twain;

Yet world, would I could love again!

—Sidney Woodworth Keese.

A SONG OF LOVE.

Hey, rose, just born,

Two to a man, on Love and Scorn?

Sweet rose that smiled,

New woe and wild,

O Eye and Tear—mother and child.

Well! Love and Pain.

Be kind to twain;

Yet world, would I could love again!

—Sidney Woodworth Keese.

LEND ME $5,000.

BY EMILY READ.

Impracticable, and badly informed about business, usually expecting favors.

“What does she look like?” asked Tom.

“That is hard to tell, for she is in widow’s mourning, and keeps her veil over her face.”

“Oh!” exclaimed Tom, very sure what manner of woman he had to deal with, and hardening his heart to his foes. “Ask her in.”

She was in the deepest weeds, and though she raised her veil, she only partially showed her face. As far as Tom could see, grief had not consumed her beauty. She had a pretty pink color, great brown eyes that had a winsome look in them, and soft blonde bangs. Tom thought he preferred dark beauties, with brown hair and merry eyes, with clear but colorless complexion: at least this kind of beauty in Kate had greatly attracted him. But he suddenly felt an admiration for plaintive eyes, and golden hair, shaded by a heavy pall of wreath of which itself would have made a young face interesting.

“I have no means, But of course you will let me have them,”

“Have you gone mad, Kate? Where could I have put your diamonds?”

“Where else but in your safe? See here, Tom,—and Kate softly behind him, and reaching over his shoulder, laid an open check on the table, for $5,000, signed by Fanny Vernon. “I knew Fanny much better than you did.”

“You do not mean, Kate, were the widow?” asked Tom, after a moment’s silence, in which he took the situation.

Kate nodded.

“But she had light hair.”

“Bought, Tom.”

“Eyes entirely different from yours,”

“Penciled, my dear.”

“And a lovely color.”

“Rouge, you goos.”

“And the diamonds are not set as you are.”

“I have them reset, I have always fancied the antique style.”

“Kate, it was proper in you to deceive your husband?”

“It was only a clever, practical joke.

They are amusing if cleverly done, you know.

“Oh, Tom, you would have given the widow the $5,000 without security, you know you would.”

“A man might trust his wife to that amount,” answered Tom.

“If he does not take her for some one else’s widow.” —Godey’s Ladie’s Book.

MY HEART IS THINE.

BY EARL MARBLE.

Sweet! — wilt thou
Ever be my Valentine?
Sweetheart, my chaste and ardent vow
Is thine alone, yes, dear one, only thine.
Thine eyes are like the stars at night,
Thy skin white and pure and white;
As white as snow, as white as snow,
All that's soft of thing, you know,
While round thy cherry lips,
Where oft play merry quips,
I wait the smiling sign
That, in thy glee,
Thou'rt ever be my Valentine! —

CHIPS.

Stanley has discovered an African river, called Kissimelonga, and it is with difficulty that the girls can be kept from emigrating.—Mornton Independent.

"Everything went off very smoothly," said one, concerning a wedding. "It ought to," said the groom, who was present. "It was run on casters." It appears that the happy couple were presented with thirteen pickle-casters.—Cincinnati Saturday Night.

Having made his will, Mr. Barnum was lately asked if he thought he would go to heaven when he died. "Well I don't see why not," was the characteristic reply of the great advertiser. "I think I have the best show on earth," Williamsport Breakfast Table.

"A silver dollar is a fraud," says a political exchange. All right, sir, hand it over. We are willing to shoulder many such frauds, but at present, mendacious confession, the fraud is a triflfe ("jeave") in this and neighboring establishments.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Strawberries are dear at $12 a quart, yet any one may have an imitation of the winter kind by soaking a small globe of half-boiled turnip in a liquid composed of one-third vinegar and two-thirds dish water. Serve with powdered sugar, and have ready a little bicarbonate of soda to cure the hiccupps.—N. Y. Herald.

Mrs. R. B. Hayes owns, and personally superintends, one of the largest poultry yards in the United States, at Fremont, Ohio. Well, what is that old rooster of a husband of hers doing all this time? He ought to be able to run a poultry yard, and give his wife a chance to rest, after his four year's as president of the United States.—Peek's Sun.

"So, my little boy, you would like to join our Sunday school, would you?" said the superintendent, kindly. "Yes, sir," replied the little boy. "What is your name, did you say?" "Johnny Simpson." "Oh, yes, you are the son of Mr. Simpson. Let me see, is your papa a Presbyterian or an Episcopalian?" "No, sir; he isn't either; he's a newspaper man."—Philadelphia Call.

An enterprising Arkansaw editor having in vain made numerous gifts to increase the circulation of his paper, finally offered the following inducement. "The publisher of this paper, having recognized the demands of the community, has decided to offer a quart bottle of whisky with each yearly subscription." It is said that the editor has rented a warehouse in which to store his subscription books.—Arkansaw Traveler.

"Do you know" said an infatuated youth to a young lady who had preferred his room to his company, "do you know that the comet of 1812, now visible, is traveling away from us at the rate of many millions of miles a day?" "No, I didn't know it; but I wish certain young young man would imitate the comet and travel off at the same rate." He traveled—but not quite so rapidly as the comet.—Norristown Herald.

"There are forty thousand Jerseys in this country," remarked Mr. Wiggleworth, without looking up from his paper. "Well, I declare," exclaimed his wife, "If I don't mean to get one, I saw a nice one in the store to-day for only six dollars." And she smiled contemplatively as she began darning a hole in the toe of a red stocking, while Mr. Wiggleworth laid down the agricultural paper he had been reading, and went out of the room, rubbing his head in a dazed sort of way.—Rockland Courier-Gazette.

They Must Tumble.

The magazines will have to come down in price, says the Detroit Free Press. Thirty-five cents is too much, and now that they are going so extensively for process engraving they can easily afford a reduction. The Century can be bought anywhere in England for 24 cents. Why should an American have to pay 11 cents more than the Englishman for an American magazine? But the thing that will force the coming down in price is the advent of the cheap English magazines here. Cassells have just published the first number of their Family Magazine in the United States. This magazine is the very best in England. Its price there is 14 cents; its price here is 15 cents. The engravings are of a very high class and the stories by the very best writers over there. The tendency of the age is towards cheap literature. The sooner the older magazines recognize the fact the better it will be for them. Harper's can be bought in London for 18 cents. Why can't they sell in New York for 20 cents?

THEY do things coolly down in Tennessee. It is said of a young lady that nineteen years ago her father refused to let her go to a candy-puff. She, however, disappeared. The other day she returned, left eleven children out of the wagon, went into her father's house and took off her things as calmly as though she had only been absent an hour or two.—Carl Pretzel.

A RATHER cynical lady, somewhat of a flirt, says most men, like colds, are very easily caught, but difficult to get rid of. Her mistake is apparent. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will cure any cold however stubborn it may be. Price 25 cents.

Traveling in Spain.

The real Spain is the least attractive country in Europe to the tourist. The traveler goes there to see certain unique objects. He sees them, enjoys them, is entranced by them, leaves them with regret and a tender memory, and is glad to get out of Spain. There are six things to see—the Alhambra, the Seville and Alcazar, the mosque of Cordova, Toledo and its cathedral, the gallery at Madrid and Monserat. The rest is mainly monotony and weariness. With the exception of the Alhambra, which has a spell that an idle man finds hard to break, and where perhaps he could be content indefinitely, there is no place in Spain that one can imagine he would like to live in for the pleasure of living. Taking out certain historical features and monuments, the towns repeat each other in their attractions and there disagreeables. Every town and city in Italy has its individual character and special charm. To go from one to another is always to change the scene and the delight. This is true of the old German towns also. Each has a character. The traveler sees many a place in each country where he thinks he could stay on from month to month, with a growing home-like feeling. I think there is nothing of this attraction in Spain. The want of it may be due to the country itself, or to the people. I fancy that with its vast arid plains, treeless and tiresome, its gullied hills and its escaped mountains, Spain resembles New Mexico. It is unsoftened, unreveled landscape, for the most part, sometimes grand in its vastness and sweep, but rugged and unadorned. The want of grass and gentle verdure is a serious drawback to the pleasure of the eye, not compensated by the magic tricks of the sunlight, and the sunbeams are few. The variegated reds, browns and yellows of the exposed soil and rocks and the springtime green of the nascent crops, I speak, of course, of the general aspect, for the mountain regions are rich in wild flowers, and the cultivation in the towns is everywhere a redeeming feature.

The traveler, of course, gets his impressions of a people from the outside. These are correct so far as they go, and it is in a sense safe to generalize on them, though not to particularize. He catches very soon the moral atmosphere of a strange land, and knows the people seem pleasant or the reverse. He learns to discriminate, for example, between the calculated gemmuthlichkeit of Switzerland and the more spontaneous friendliness of Bavaria. He can pronounce at once upon the cordial good humor of the Viennese, the obligingness of the people of Edinburgh, the agreeableness of the Swedes, simply on street knowledge, without ever entering a private house or receiving any personal hospitality. He knows the wily poetical ways by which he is beguiled in Italy but grows fond of the sunny race.

"When he had to pay $5 he looked rather surprised, but simply observed: 'I fail to see, don't you know, that fruit is cheaper here than in England!'"

Signor Philippi, manager of one of Delmonico's downtown restaurants, said that there were no strawberries on the bill of fare there, although they were served at the Twenty-sixth-st, restaurant.

"You see," observed the signor, "They're no good. We would have them at whatever price if they were, but they look big and firm, and when you go to eat them, presto! they are so much water. Toward the end of this month we will have the berries from Florida, which one can eat with pleasure to his palate."—N. Y. Morning Journal.

BOSTON girls never say "He is a gone goose." When a lover is observed to be idiotically sweet on any particular young lady the other girls refer to him as "a departed aquatic fowl of the genus Anser."—Bismarck Tribune.

SPARTA, TENN.—Dr. W. B. Cummings says: "I am strongly convinced of the efficacy of Brown's Iron Bitters and recommend them."

LEWISBURG, IND.—Rev. J. S. Cain says: "I used Brown's Iron Bitters for nervous prostration and found it entirely satisfactory."
